

Prysmian Expansion

Du Quoin, Illinois

CHOOSING SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

"Employers are recognizing Southern Illinois' quality workforce, the fact that we sit at the hub of a world-class rail network, and that two-thirds of the country lives within a day's truck drive from the region. What they're learning is that Southern Illinois is the best place to grow their businesses."

Illinois Governor, JB Pritzker

Biggest Investment in Du Quoin in Decades

Expansion project includes adding 100,000 square feet of manufacturing space and hiring 80 additional employees, bringing the total to around 300.

Annual Economic Impact

Bolstered by a REV Illinois incentive package, Prysmian plans to invest $63.8 million and create 80 new high-paying jobs while retaining 225 jobs in Southern Illinois - solidifying its position as one of the largest employers in Perry County. The expansion paves the way for increased renewable cable production in Illinois, adding over 100,000 square feet of new manufacturing space and seven major pieces of equipment, including a two-line expansion for renewable cable production. The expansion will also help modernize the existing infrastructure and implement an Energy Management System within the facility.

"We had alternatives, but the government, helped us ... to make the decision to put the money here."

Prysmian CEO Andrea Pirondini said of investing in the Du Quoin plant.
